George Bridge has a secret, a wrong he did a lifetime ago that he must confess. Back in the summer and autumn of 1918 he lived life at a pitch he never experienced again; any moment could have been his last. He was a pilot in the RAF. Day after day, George and his friend Billy Love fight for their lives. Just nineteen, they have everything to live for, but flying three miles above France, its kill or be killed and machine guns, Fokkers and a long burning fall haunt their dreams. At home their families wait; and so do their girls. Billy loves Jessica. Constance loves George. But who does George love? Then Billy flies into history and nothing is ever the same again. That Quiet Earth is rich in the kind of 'boys own' descriptions of combat that characterise this kind of fiction, but underlying the novel is an astute study of madness; the insanity of the war itself and the personal decline of tormented young Billy Love. As featured on BBC Radio Bristol and Clifton Life Magazine.

 Contemporary visions of the future have been shaped by hopes and fears about the effects of human technology and global capitalism on the natural world. In an era of climate change, mass extinction, and oil shortage, such visions have become increasingly catastrophic, even apocalyptic. Exploring the close relationship between science fiction, ecology, and environmentalism, the essays in Green Planets consider how science fiction writers have been working through this crisis. Beginning with H. G. Wells and passing through major twentieth-century writers like Ursula K. Le Guin, Stanislaw Lem, and Thomas Disch to contemporary authors like Margaret Atwood, China Miéville, and Paolo Bacigalupi—as well as recent blockbuster films like Avatar and District 9—the essays in Green Planets consider the important place for science fiction in a culture that now seems to have a very uncertain future. The book includes an extended interview with Kim Stanley Robinson and an annotated list for further exploration of “ecological SF” and related works of fiction, nonfiction, films, television, comics, children’s cartoons, anime, video games, music, and more. Contributors include Christina Alt, Brent Bellamy, Sabine Höhler, Adeline Johns-Putra, Melody Jue, Rob Latham, Andrew Milner, Timothy Morton, Eric C. Otto, Michael Page, Christopher Palmer, Gib Prettyman, Elzette Steenkamp, Imre Szeman.

Pilgrimage of Awakening Mary V. T. Cattan 2016-06-10 Pilgrimage of Awakening is the first biography of the Rogers. Arriving in India after World War II afire with religious zeal, the Reverend Murray Rogers and his wife, Mary, are rocked by the collision of Eastern and Western values. The handsome young couple from England's upper crust, raised with nannies and educated at finishing schools and Cambridge, uproot their children to live a life in solidarity with India's poorest. They seize the challenge of life in Gandhi's Sevagram, then found their own small Christian ashram. Interacting with spiritual leaders on the religious world stage, Murray, the magnetic young Anglican priest, becomes a pioneer in interfaith dialogue. The couple embraces strands of Hinduism and Buddhism in their life pilgrimage across boundaries of culture and faith in India, Jerusalem, Hong Kong, and Canada. As they "rock the boat" institutionally, their spiritual pilgrimage and awakening sparks both controversy and awakening in countless others. Pilgrimage of Awakening is the intimate unfolding of their joyful and painful spiritual transformation within their small community as they raise their three children. Tensions of their dual callings to marriage and family and to dedicated religious life interweave to create a movingly human and sacred story.

That Quiet Earth Bruce Fellows 2012-05-01 That Quiet Earth combines a heartbreaking love story with a stunningly accurate portrait of life as a pilot during the Great War. George Bridge has a secret that he doesn't want to carry to his grave; a wrong he did a lifetime ago that he must confess. A newspaper story about the sale of the Victoria Cross won by his friend Billy Love in 1918 sends him back to the time when any moment could have been his last; when he lived life at a pitch he never again experienced; the time when he flew in France with the RAF. That Quiet Earth gives a stunning portrait of the life led by pilots of single-seater scout aircraft on the Western Front and of the physical and psychological stresses they suffered. Daily, George and Billy climb into their wood and canvas biplanes and without oxygen fly up to two thirds the height of Everest. There are no parachutes and therefore no escape from a burning or crippled aeroplane and death might appear around any cloud or at any moment announce its presence with bullets from an unseen enemy. Back on earth, their next flight into danger is always threatening. George (Grammar school) and Billy (Eton) have entirely different backgrounds but both are scout pilots and both are absurdly young for the job they are doing. Back home, their families wait for them and Jessica waits for Billy. Then Billy flies into history to become a hero and everything changes. That Quiet Earth is about fear, betrayal and guilt, but above all it is a love story. Bruce Fellows lives in Bristol. He has written many pieces for performance and his play Rabbit Ears, about army wives and the Afghan War, was produced by Theatre West in 2010. He has had a lifelong interest in early aviation. That Quiet Earth is his first published novel.

For the Sleepers in that Quiet Earth Nick Montfort 2019 For the sleepers in that quiet earth. is a computer-generated artbook resulting from the increasingly coherent results of a machine learning process trained on the novel Wuthering Heights. Each book is a unique snapshot of the learning process of a deep recurrent neural network trained on Emily Brontë's Wuthering Heights. As the system skims over the text and repeatedly encounters its syntactical and stylistic materialities, this machine learning algorithm generates new, unforeseen content that reveals its current "understanding" of the text. The book thus unrolls the learning loop of an adaptive machine in its attempt at imitating Brontë's style. ... <https://sofianaudry.com/en/for-the-sleepers>. The Quiet Earth Margaret SUNLEY 1992
